Abstract (en)

[origin: WO2007018357A2] An air-conditioner invention includes an electronic album for editing/storing a plurality of photo-images. The photo-images can be displayed/edited on the display. The air-conditioner includes a memory for storing variety of data to be displayed on the display. The data stored in the memory is stored while being classified according to folders, and the stored data is displayed in the form of various shapes. Therefore, the air-conditioner can easily manage variety of data according to data types, such that a user can easily search for desired data in the memory, resulting in greater convenience of the user.
