Abstract (en)
[origin: EP1925345A1] The skin (1) has a skin side and a gluing side for detachably fastening under a bearing surface of skis having edges, by a ski tip in a direction of a ski end, where the skin has a connected, integrated, and bifurcated form. Skin straps (11) are attached to a head part (10), and are passed into even skin strap regions (14) in a flexible direction from the head part over a narrow joint point (12) and an adjustable section (13). The strap regions correspond to breadth of the edges such that the skin is adapted to breadth and shape of the bearing surface and is fastenable to the ski.
