Abstract (en)

This invention relates, on the one hand, to a method for forming a wall comprising primary wall parts (1) and secondary wall parts (2) formed in the ground. This invention relates, on the other hand, to a wall formed by such a method. The method according to this invention comprises the following steps: - the formation of at least two primary wall parts (1) spaced apart, with or without reinforcement; - the formation of the secondary wall parts (2) by mechanical loosening up of the soil and mixing this loosened soil with a hardening binder such as cement, for example.
