Abstract (en)
[origin: WO2008048213A2] A munition pursuit vehicle includes a housing adapted to be releasably attached to a munition and to be carried by the munition in flight, and a release system for completely separating the pursuit vehicle from the munition in flight. An imaging and transmission system transmits a video signal depicting the trajectory of the munition, and a decelerator system is included for reducing the velocity of the housing when it is detached from the munition.
