Abstract (en)
[origin: WO2007042624A1] The invention relates to a group and list management system, for example an XML document management system, XDM. In the system, user-specific service-related information is contained in at least one of group and list XML documents stored in network repositories, called XML document management servers, XDMS (131, 132). In an embodiment of the invention, intercept-related information concerning XML documents is sent to law enforcement monitoring facility (220) via an aggregation proxy (115) for a lawful interception purpose.
