Abstract (en)

[origin: WO2007040383A1] The invention relates to a belt (1) for drawing a garment tighter around a person's body, comprising an elongated band (2) that can be passed around the body and fixation means for fixing the belt in a tightened position. The fixation means comprise a series of teeth (4) extending along a certain length on a first side of the elongated band and an engagement element (5) provided near a first end of the elongated band, which engages one of said teeth in the tightened position for fixing the same with respect to said first end. The engagement element is substantially rigid in relation to the first end of the belt.
