Abstract (en)
[origin: DE102005061539A1] The epilation device comprises an epilation roller (3) with pincer type clamping elements (4) around the circumference and a skin stimulation device (6) whose drive has control means so that the transverse movements of the stimulation elements in one row can be staggered relative to one another. The stimulation drive comprises a drive shaft with drive cams producing the staggered movements. Independent claim describes fitment (5) for epilation device which supports skin stimulation device on housing (7) which detachably fits on tool head.
