Abstract (en)

[origin: WO2007053917A2] A method for composing music by a non-musician is based on the use of pre-recorded melodies which are stored in banks and associated with orchestra accompaniments also stored in banks. Said orchestra accompaniments are in advance embodied in the form of an entire devoid of melody part. A selected melody is associable, with the aid of a suitable software, with a selected accompaniment by means of a dictation process which makes it possible to select, with a tolerance range, the duration and position of each melody note in the accompaniment.
