Abstract (en)

[origin: DE102007020074B3] The method for carrying out rinse programmes in a dishwasher, in which a standard programme or a programme adapted to combination products can be carried out, entails carrying out the adapted programme as the factory preset basic programme until filling of at least one container with clear rinse medium or regenerating salt takes place, and after the filling carrying out the standard programme for a pre-established number of programme sequences. The standard programme is carried out only during the filling of the salt container and clear rinse medium supply container.
