Abstract (en)

[origin: EP2005857A1] The applicator has an application unit (10) e.g. injected brush, comprising rows (12) of application elements (13) e.g. bristles, connected to a core (11), where length of each application element is high. One of the rows of application elements is connected to the core by a bent portion. Each application element has a rectilinear portion formed between the bent portion and a free end (45). The rectilinear portion extends opposite to respective underlying surface of the core, and parallel to the surface.
