Abstract (en)

[origin: WO2007111550A1] The invention concerns a shelf system (1) intended to be mounted on the underside of an essentially horizontal surface (2) such as the underside of a step in a stairway (3, 4). The shelf consists of at least one shelf section (5) and at least one fastening device (6) with which the shelf section can be temporarily attached under for example a stairway. The invention is characterized by the fastening device consisting of at least two rails (7, 8), which are designed to engage with a corresponding number of grooves (9, 10) in the shelf section.
