[origin: EP2014569A1] The device has an applicator with an applicator head (16) that includes a distribution orifice (96) emerging towards an application element via an opening (100) inclined with respect to an axis. The head is movable with respect to an obturator between open and closed positions in which the obturator is disengaged and engaged respectively in the orifice. The obturator is partially housed in the head in the open position by withdrawing the opening. A distal end of the obturator extends close to the opening in the closed position and does not project outside the opening in the closed position.
