Abstract (en)
[origin: WO2007128448A1] A hand-held sanitary shower comprises in a manner known per se a handle carrying a shower head and being connectible to a shower hose. At least one lighting device (10) is associated with an optical fiber arrangement in the shower head. Said optical fiber arrangement has a feed section (16a) which has a light injection surface facing the lighting device (10). The light is supplied to a distribution arrangement (16b, 16c) via the feed section (16a), said distribution arrangement splitting the light up into at least two distribution branches (16b). The free ends of said distribution branches are arranged in such a manner that light emerging therefrom can exit the shower head.
