Abstract (en)

[origin: EP2016866A1] The invention provides a chair-type massage machine comprising a backrest and a seat which can be reclined by a single drive source while permitting the user to hold a relaxed posture. The chair-type massage machine comprises a backrest (20) for the back of the user to bear on, a seat (30) for the user to sit in, and a reclining mechanism (40) for pivotally moving the backrest (20) and the seat (30). The reclining mechanism (40) comprises a single drive source (42), the drive source being coupled to the backrest (20) and the seat (30) by a link assembly (50). The link assembly is operable to pivotally move the backrest (20) from a raised position to a reclined position via an intermediate position by operating the drive source (42).
