Abstract (en)

[origin: EP2033537A1] The device has applicator units (6a, 6b) connected on a container in a manner to be in communication with outlet orifices, and other applicator unit comprising an applicator element made of a compressible foam material. A hood (2) is detachably mounted on the container between covering and withdrawal positions, and is cooperated with the applicator units for blocking the outlet orifices. A female groove (12a) and a stop release of the hood are designed such that the hood is relatively guided with the container in a translation path which extends along two distinct directions.
