Abstract (en)

[origin: EP2048468A2] A remote firing control for an automatic hand weapon, e.g. a machine gun or self loading gun, has the trigger pulled by a firing solenoid magnet and with the safe operating sequence controlled by a securing safety solenoid magnet. The magnets are fitted to the rear of the breech in place of a shoulder stock and are operated by a control program which ensures the correct firing sequence, e.g. safety release, firing, end of firing, pause, safety lock. The program controls single shot as well as automatic burst.
