Abstract (en)
[origin: WO2008037845A1] The invention is related to a number service in a user's terminal device. A method providing the service comprises maintaining a general telephone number register in connection with the user's terminal device (401) in an encrypted format so that the user of the terminal device is prevented from having direct access to said general telephone number register, receiving a search criterion, searching said general telephone number register for data using said search criterion, and providing said searched data for use by the user of the terminal device.
