Abstract (en)

[origin: WO2008043435A1] A blank (14) designed according to a transversal folding principle is used for producing hinged lid-type cigarette packs comprising a box part (10) and a lid (11). In a first combined folding step, an intermediate fold is created in which a bottom wall (17), an internal lateral flap (13), and an opposite leg blank (75) composed of a sidewall (15), a front wall (12), and an external side flap (19) are raised, i.e. of a side that faces forward when the cut is subsequently moved. The pack remains open in the area of a front wall (16) such that a pack content can be introduced in said first folding step.
