Abstract (en)

[origin: EP2082658A1] The shoe i.e. cross-country skiing boot (1), has a rod (3) comprising a bottom portion (10) surrounding a foot of a user, and a collar (13), which partly extends at level of a top portion (11) of the rod, where the shoe extends in height from an outsole (2) to an upper end (12). The collar is connected to the rod by a transversal articulation axis (23). An elastic unit (30) is arranged opposite to an inclination of the collar towards a heel (4). A removable integration unit integrates the elastic unit with the rod, where articulations of the collar and the integration unit are coaxial.
