Abstract (en)
[origin: EP2098660A2] The mobile house has a rectangular interior space, device for controlling temperature of the interior space, a feeder, a water supply pipe and water drain. The interior space is determined by a base panel, a ceiling panel and wall panels. The panels are carried out in a heat insulating manner for a heat bridge-free insulation of the interior space. A vertical end frame carrier provided for drainage is connected with a plastic tank for the storage of the diverted rain water. The panels are held externally by self supported base frame, which is made up of steel or aluminum.
