Abstract (en)

The invention relates to fastening clamps for fastening frames to brick walls, specific frame and form of assembly, consisting of a set of clamps which are fixed to frames without the need for screws, brads or adhesives, rendering the vertical plane of the clamp parallel to the vertical wall of the frame. The first clamp is installed by clipping or embedding under pressure by means of side flanges in the specific frame provided with a groove suited to such purpose, allowing in its groove movements in the longitudinal direction and being firmly fixed in the transverse direction, and the second clamp is installed by nailing under pressure to a common frame by means of prongs with the aid of an assembly tool.
