Abstract (en)
[origin: WO2008089926A1] A mascara applicator has a handle section, supporting a first brush on a first support piece and a second brush on a second support piece. Each brush is provided with a dedicated mascara supply and the first brush is a wire-bound brush with filaments held between twisted wires. The second brush is an injection moulded brush with fingers made from a soft elastic plastic. A first mascara for the first brush has different rheological and/or chemical properties and in particular a higher viscosity than a second mascara for the injection moulded second brush.
