Abstract (en)

[origin: WO2008114283A1] A receptacle device (1) comprises a containment space (2) at least partially defined by an inner surface (3) of a containment wall (4) made of glass or glass-ceramic material, and connecting means for connecting a handle (5) to the containment wall (4). The connecting means comprise a connecting portion (6) projecting from an outer surface (7) of the containment wall (4) opposite the inner surface (3), wherein the connecting portion (6) is intended to be accommodated within a corresponding seat (8, 12) of the handle that can be mounted about the connecting portion (6) and wherein the connecting portion (6) has such a shape as to result non-extractable from the seat (8, 12) when mounted thereto.
