Said internal combustion engine comprises at least one cylinder head (2) which contains, interposed between two camshafts (6) of a valve drive (7) for controlling gas exchange valves, at least one fresh air duct (5) on the head side for every cylinder (4), a cylinder head cover (10) for closing the cylinder head (2), said cover having at least one fresh air duct (11) on the cover side for every cylinder (4), said fresh air duct being connected to the corresponding fresh air duct (5) on the head side to communicate therewith when the cylinder head cover (10) is mounted, and a fresh air system (15) having a housing (14) which has at least one fresh air duct (15) on the housing side for every cylinder (4), said fresh air duct being connected to the fresh air duct (15) on the cover side to communicate therewith when the fresh air system (13) is mounted. The invention is characterized in that the cylinder head cover (10) and the housing (14) or a housing portion (16) having the fresh air ducts (15) on the housing side is configured by a single plastic injection-molded part (17) or by one such part which is produced in one piece.
