Abstract (en)

[origin: EP2143868A1] The seal i.e. automatically retractable floor-seal (1), has an expansion element (3) including a section projecting into a position of a pressing structure at an end of a sealing housing (2). The section is arranged in another position of the pressing structure within the sealing housing. Another section of the expansion element is connected with a former section, for working together with the pressing structure, where the former section is longer than the latter section. A sealant is provided in the sealing housing.
