Abstract (en)
[origin: WO2008122001A2] Disclosed are systems and methods for placing and processing test orders and real orders. In various embodiments, test trading orders are generated, transmitted and ranked. In various embodiments, real and test trading orders are processed and results are transmitted back to the entities originating the orders. In various embodiments, a data signal differentiates between real and test trading orders and a computer system processes the orders based on differing values.
