Abstract (en)
[origin: EP2191941A2] The handle (31) has a fastening strap (37) for fixing the handle at a section of a manual tool machine. A support section is brought into contact with the section. A grip element (26) holds the handle. The support section is formed by an insert (41), which is fixedly connected with the strap and is made of elastically deformable plastic i.e. elastomer. Elevations are arranged at a side of the insert, where the side faces away from the strap. The elevations extend transverse to a plane stretched by a fastening chamber (38). The insert includes segments (42, 43) spaced relative to each other.
