Abstract (en)

[origin: EP2198742A2] The device has a base comprising an applicator (20) for spreading a cosmetic product on a bodily application surface e.g. face. The base is moved relative to a tube (3) between a high position and a low position. The tube defines a sliding path with a set of irregularities against which the supporting member is slidden. The sliding path is provided with a sliding edge for guiding the movement of the base from low position to high position. A positioning member limits sinking of the supporting member relative to the tube.
