Abstract (en)
[origin: EP2225961A1] The invention relates in one aspect to a studded shoe having at least one stud 200, wherein the at least one stud 200 has an asymmetric shape which provides resistance against rotary motions of the studded shoe with respect to a ground surface. The at least one stud 200 is attached to the studded shoe so that it can perform translatory and / or rotary motions with respect to a first surface 130 determined by a sole 100.
