Abstract (en)

[origin: WO2009077792A1] The present invention concerns a temporary building structure (1) for location at a building development site. The structure comprises an internal living space (2, 3, 4), having an interior resembling one from within the building development. The internal living space (2, 3) is movable between variable positions for allowing an occupant to experience the internal living space (2, 3) at different positions which correspond to different positional options within the development.
