Abstract (en)
[origin: WO2009071837A2] The invention relates to a holder that can be adapted to a headphone body, characterised in that it comprises means for removable attachment onto said body and in that it can be associated with a decorative element. More precisely, the holder has a generally annular shape having ends defining attachment means, including free ends, thus defining lips or clamps. Advantageously, a decoration member can be attached, glued, integrated, clipped or clamped on the portion opposite said lips. The decoration member can thus be arranged according to at least three directional axes.
