Abstract (en)

[origin: WO2009118001A2] The invention relates to a system for providing portioned and tempered beverages for mobile use. It is an object of the invention to create possibilities, with which differently tempered beverages can be made available for consumption, while the expenses for equipment and the consumption of energy can be reduced. In an inventive system, there is a thermally insulated container for accommodating at least one container containing tempered water and at least one dispensing element containing a liquid or powdery concentrate.
