Abstract (en)

[origin: EP2298139A1] The neck support cushion has a pillow cover which covers a cushion core comprising width, depth and height. The cushion core has three zones (BZ1,BZ2,BZ3) over its width and three zones (TZ1,TZ2,TZ3) over its depth and has different supporting hardness. The zones of different hardness are formed through sections introduced into a foam block in a support area. The sections are formed starting from the support area of the cushion core across a section depth in meander shape in such a way that an extension and a contraction of the section width are formed below the support area.
