Abstract (en)
[origin: EP2325805A1] The method involves framing a rule for determining identification information from personal or device-specific data. A control unit is generated for controlling a presented authorization. The control unit is provided for testing the values of the identification. Another rule determines the other identification information. The authorization of the central mechanism is transmitted to a mobile telecommunication terminal (200) by Multimedia messaging service (MMS). An independent claim is also included for a system for executing an access control method.
