Abstract (en)

[origin: WO2010063270A1] The invention relates to a ball play area, particularly for training, playing, and for competitions, preferably for soccer, for at least one player, comprising a playing field (1) bounded by a wall (2) and at least one ball-throwing device (3) providing the ball, wherein openings (5) and/or detectors (6) for registering the ball shot by the player are provided in or in the area of the wall (2), and wherein the data affected by the provision of the ball and the shot results can be processed in a computer and stored in a memory. A plurality of such systems can, for example, be connected or networked to a central computer by means of the Internet, namely for the purpose of centrally analyzing corresponding results.
