Abstract (en)

[origin: EP2365157A1] The connection device (108) has a retaining area provided with two distant grooves, between which an insertion section is arranged. The retaining area and a base body (10) are made of plastic material or composite material. A retaining element (34) is made of flat material of metal. The insertion section is held in the retaining area, where form closure prevents movement of the retaining area in direction of rotation around an insertion direction.
