Abstract (en)

The present invention relates to a unit for location above, on top of and/or inside a floor drain provided in a space to permit laying of tiles or similar on top of the floor drain. A low-built unit is obtained by providing a unit comprising two members (8, 9), wherein a first member (8) of the unit (1) is provided with a space (10) for a second member (9) of the unit, and with a portion (11) for location of said first member above, on top of and/or in the floor drain (2) such that the space via at least one opening (12) in a bottom part (13) for the space is open downwards towards an inlet portion (3) of the floor drain, wherein the second member of the unit is provided with a space (14) for at least one tile or similar, and wherein said first and second members of the unit are configured such that, after location of the second member in the space in the first member, a bottom part (19) of the second member is lying substantially in level with the bottom part (13) of the first member and a vertical or substantially vertical gap (15) is defined between said members, which above opens into the space with the floor drain and down below at least partly opens substantially into said at least one opening in the bottom part for the space in the first member of the unit or just above said opening.
