Abstract (en)

[origin: EP2422640A2] A gemstone (10) having a front (12) and back (10). The gemstone comprises a lower pavilion and an upper crown. The crown has a top surface and a pair of longitudinally opposed multi-faceted sides that slope downwardly away from said top and towards said pavilion. The top surface of the crown comprises two laterally opposed top surface portions (38) that are separated from one another by a single horizontally directed straight linear peak (42) running in a longitudinal direction between said sides with each top surface portion sloping downwardly in a lateral direction away from said peak and towards said front and back respectively. Said pavilion has a bottom surface (18), said bottom surface having at least one horizontally directed planar bottom portion.
