Abstract (en)

[origin: EP2426248A1] The washing drum has air openings (21) that are formed in a wall (20) which divides inner space (11) and outer space (12) such that air flow (13) from inner space to outer space is possible. A convex surface is formed between the air openings whose cross-sectional area is gradually reduced from outer surface to inner surface. The wall is partially comprised of a metal sheet.
