Abstract (en)

[origin: EP2444363A1] The device (1) has a transportation unit (8) for transportation of container closures (10a, 10b). The transportation unit is arranged in a transport direction of the container closures in sections downstream relative to feed devices (2, 4). The container closures are transported in a given sequence. A distribution device (20) changes a sequence of the container closures in the transportation unit. The feed devices feed the container closures. The container closures are different from each other in physical properties. Independent claims are also included for the following: (1) a system for closing of containers with container closures (2) a method for transporting container closures.
