Abstract (en)

[origin: EP2444752A2] The method involves deflecting introduced air using an air spoiler, and diagonally guiding the introduced air against a window through an air duct in a cover, so that condensate formation is caused against a windowpane. Height adjustment is enabled by adjusting feet, and the adjusting feet are coupled with sound by a support foot. Exact positioned accommodation of the support foot is enabled by the guide rail. An air outlet bar with a double strap bearing is arranged over an air outlet at an inner door region, where the bearing is coupled with sound.
