Abstract (en)

[origin: WO2011006614A1] The invention relates to a method for producing window or door elements, comprising a profile frame assembled from profile pieces, and comprising at least one pane having the aforementioned features installed thereon, wherein the profile pieces are prefixed to one another for forming corner connections. Subsequently, the at least one pane is bonded with the prefixed profile frame so that the corner connections are made stable due to the pane cemented therein.
