Abstract (en)

[origin: EP2468938A1] The method involves controlling a relative movement generated between an applicator and an embroidery base (15) by a program of an embroidery machine, and applying a substance on the embroidery base. The applicator has a spray device (37), by which the substance is sprayed on the embroidery base. The spray function is activated and deactivated by the program of the embroidery machine. Independent claims are also included for the following: (1) an applicator for an embroidery machine; and (2) an embroidery machine comprises application units.
