Abstract (en)
[origin: WO2011036023A1] The invention relates to a device (10, 50, 60) for handling value notes, comprising a control unit (38) which executes program data of a computer program. The device (10, 50, 60) further has an authentication data memory (28) in which authentication data for the unique authentication of the device (10, 50, 60) are stored. The control unit (38) produces a unique reference value depending on said authentication data. The device (10, 50, 60) further comprises a transmission unit (20, 62) which transmits reference data comprising the reference value for producing a device-specific license key to a license administration unit (46). The transmission unit (20, 46) further receives data comprising the license key from the license administration unit (46). The control unit (38) enables at least one functional module of the computer program depending on the license key.
