Abstract (en)
[origin: WO2011029542A1] The invention relates to a vending machine for ready meals, comprising a storage compartment for the ready meals and a microwave oven associated therewith for heating them up. For the reliable handling of the ready meals during introduction into the microwave oven and during discharge from the microwave oven, the microwave oven is provided with a plate for receiving the ready meals, which plate can be alternately tilted about one of two axes that are arranged perpendicularly to each other. The tilting movement is brought about by means of pull cords which are coupled to a lid for a supply opening or a closure for a discharge opening of the microwave oven.
