Abstract (en)
[origin: EP2508823A2] To provide a refrigerator which maintains heat dissipation by preventing peeling of a heat reflective material when the heat reflective material is attached to a back panel constituting a back face of the refrigerator. It is possible to prevent peeling of a first heat reflective material by assembling such that an end face of the first heat reflective material is held between the flanges and the back panel by lapping flanges of left and right side panels of the refrigerator and the back panel to which the first heat reflective material is attached.
