Abstract (en)
The packing base (1) according to the present invention creates a package for storing and protecting delicate articles while using the least possible amount of packing material. The packing base (1) comprises a group of consecutive bendably connected reception elements (10) equipped with recesses (14) receiving an article. The packing base (1) according to the invention can be arranged in a spread-open position, in which the packing base's (1) group of parallel reception elements (10) is arranged to receive articles in the visible recesses (14), and in a closed position, in which the reception elements (10) are bent to protect the recesses (14), in order to form a closed package surrounded by the packing base (1). The reception elements (10) have a first side (11) and a second side (12), which sides (11, 12) are farther from each other at one end than at the other end, where they are joined by an end ridge (13), in which recesses (14) are arranged, in order to receive the said articles.
