Abstract (en)

[origin: EP2522925A2] The method involves detecting a fuel level and/or amount of fuel in a filling space. A remaining amount of the fuel determined by a regulating device (E) and/or indicating, signal and/or communication units (S) are displayed. Threshold values for the fuel level and/or the amount of fuel are predetermined in the filling space such that a request to an operator of a heater (H) takes place to a feed with fuel by the indicating, signal and/or communication units while falling below the threshold values.
