Abstract (en)
A container (2) for a powdered nutritional product has a product containing portion (4) and a scoop containing recess (6) for storing an elongate scoop (16), at least partially separated from the product containing portion by a separating wall (54). A circumferential rim (8) for connection to the product containing portion defines an access opening (38) to the product containing portion and is closed by a lid (10). The separating wall may serve to prevent powder dropping from the scoop during storage from falling into the product containing portion. The separate recess can receive the scoop prior to first use of the container and also thereafter.
