Abstract (en)

[origin: EP2529651A2] The device (1) has a rod-shaped positioning element (7) formed at an end of an end section bent on a side of a supporting rod (6), which is turned away from a shower room. The end section runs from the side of the rod, which is turned towards the shower room over the rod. The positioning element has an intermediate section between the end section and a handle part (9) that forms a lower end of the positioning element. The handle part is formed from resilient bendable material. The positioning element is made of cold or warm deformable material.
